Attention is called to the advertisement of the Wheeling Register in another column. It is the best of our State papers, and was never more fully edited than at the present time. Its weekly edition ought to be popular among the farmers, for it gives all the news of the State.

Bowman, the head of the firm, has graduated in the principal eastern cities, and thoroughly understands how to carve marble and granite, both for artistic effect and durability. In the near future a permanent location will be secured, giving the firm room for their complete stock of new designs in foreign and domestic stone.

LITTLE LOCALS.

The Things of Interest that are Happening in Our Neighborhood and Elsewhere.

Preparations are being made to lay the new pavement along the King street side of Shepherd College grounds. A considerable amount of grading is necessary and some blasting will have to be done.

A subscriber in far-off Kansas, in renewing a subscription to the REGISTER, says: "I look for it more anxiously than for any of the many papers and periodicals we receive. It seems like a bit of my old home."

Mr. George T. Spewer is building a new dwelling-house for himself on his farm about four miles west of Shepherdstown. It is a frame building, two stories high, and is to be a convenient and comfortable residence.

John Clem, tried in the United States Court at Martinsburg last week for selling liquor without license, was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 40 days in jail. He was credited with 45 days in jail, however, and discharged.

The World says that the three days term of the United States Court at Martinsburg last week cost $1,000, made up of the following items: Witness fees, $514.30; jurors, $304.40; marshal, $123.00; bailiffs, $29; and miscellaneous, $88.75.

Offended by an article published in the Hagerstown Mail, Harry Zeller last Thursday made an assault upon Editor Richard Hamilton on the street in Hagerstown. Zeller got the worst of the scuffle and is under bond to appear before the court besides.

There is to be a big celebration at Brunswick on Saturday in honor of the opening of the fine new bridge across the Potomac river at that place. There is to be a parade, with speechmaking and other exercises in the afternoon, and a display of fireworks at night.

The REGISTER is indebted to Mr. C. J. Knott, of Moler's, this county, for a generous box of most delicious honey sent us a few days ago. The only trouble about it is that it won't keep—especially when the children once get a taste of it. Just think of back-wheat cakes and honey!

A young man named Marshall, from Sharpsburg, was pretty badly hurt last Monday at the Virginia ore bank, near Bakerton, this county. While he was at work getting out ore a bank of earth caved in on him, bruising him very badly about the head and body. Dr. Knott gave him medical attention.

The other day two tramps started to make a fire at the edge of Martinsburg to heat some coffee. Two boys near by ordered them not to light the fire, and when the tramps did so began shooting at them with a cut rifle. One of the tramps was painfully wounded in the head by a bullet. The youth with the gun was held for the grand jury.

Last summer Miss Blanche Wentzel lost her watch and chain in the Lutheran cemetery, west of Bolivar. On Wednesday of this week her aunt was cleaning up the Wentzel lot in the cemetery and found the long lost timepiece. After it had been found it started to run, just as if nothing had happened to it, and has continued to tick merrily up to date.—Hagerstown Post.

Mr. G. Lippitt Renner, a former resident of this county, joined the United States Army last year. He soon got disgusted with soldiering, and deserted. He went to work as a conductor on a street railway in Richmond, Va., but was arrested for his desertion from the army. Through the efforts of Hon. Wm. L. Wilson and others the matter was smoothed over, and Renner obtained a regular discharge.

The new force of internal revenue officers in this city have their duties well in hand and are discharging them with ability. Some of their predecessors were pig-headed enough to think that they could embarrass the collector in the business of his office by refusing to give any instructions to the present force, but the collector had chosen well and his new men have proven themselves capable of performing their duties satisfactorily and efficiently.—Martinsburg Statesman.

Miss Ella Kerney, one of the bright young ladies of Shepherdstown, has started in to learn the art of typesetting in the REGISTER office this week. This is an innovation in this place, but at Martinsburg, Charles town and other places in this State female compositors are beginning to fill the printing offices. They give the greatest satisfaction, as they are quick to learn to set type and with nimble fingers and bright intellects quickly prove themselves equal to the men. It is a new field of usefulness opening to young women, and it is to their credit that they are taking advantage of it.

Mr. Geo. H. Hagley, says the Charleston Spirit, finding that his money drawer and safe had been tampered with on two different occasions and money abstracted, set a watch for the thieves, and on Saturday night at 11 o'clock, or later, he stepped out of a back store door and found his gate ajar. Entering he encountered a negro boy, who attempted to escape and was pursued up the street by Mr. R. B. Lucas, who fired several shots at him. The boy, Louis Ball, alias Prunt, was finally captured in Mr. Frank Butler's cellar, and subsequently two others, John Henry Cole and Joseph Carter, were arrested as being implicated with him. The prisoners had a hearing before Mayor Brown and were held to answer before the next grand jury.

The Death Record.

Mr. Thomas Winebrenner, a well-known resident of Berkeley county, died at his home at Winebrenner's Cross Roads, between Shepherdstown and Martinsburg, last Friday. He was 75 years old and had been sick for some time. His remains were buried in the cemetery at Martinsburg on Sunday.

Mr. John R. Stewart, a prominent resident of Clarke county, Va., died last Sunday, aged 73 years. His wife, who died eight years ago, was a daughter of the late Dr. Burkhardt, of Martinsburg, and his daughter married Mr. J. W. Thomas, of the same place.

Mrs. Mary Opie Meade died in Staunton, Va., Saturday morning. Deceased was a daughter of the late Hiram Opie, of Augusta county, Va., formerly of this county, and was married near Staunton in 1865 to Dr. H. Baylies Meade, of Amelia county, Va.

Dr. Philip Schaff, a noted theologian, died in New York a few days ago, aged 71 years. Dr. Schaff was a cousin of the late Col. Schley, of this vicinity, and was a frequent visitor here many years ago.

Greenbury Young, an aged resident of Boonsboro, died on Monday. He was 71 years of age.

Couldn't Stand the Temptation.

Last Monday morning Thomas Garrison was in Longbeams' liquor saloon in this place, when the proprietor stepped out for a few moments. A couple of shot-bags full of money—$100 in all—lay upon a shelf behind the bar, and the sight of it proved a temptation that the unfortunate young man could not resist. He put the money in his pockets and slipped out the back way. Mr. Longbeams soon returned and missed the money. He started after Garrison, whom he soon overtook, and recovered it all. Longbeams then got out a warrant for Garrison's arrest. The latter had gone across the river to Maryland, but somehow he was soon under arrest and looked in jail. Magistrate Reith and Mayor Ray were both out of town, so Recorder Chapline gave Garrison a preliminary hearing. He made no defense, and in default of bail was committed to jail at Charleston to await the action of the grand jury. Much sympathy was expressed for the accused, who seemed to feel keenly the disgrace he had brought on himself. He claims that he was under the influence of liquor when he committed the act.

Shake, Stonewall.

A most amusing incident occurred in the United States court while in session on last Tuesday morning. A resident of Randolph county, a typical snake hunter and manufacturer of that material which produces "snakes," was arraigned before Judge Jackson for violating the internal revenue laws, but his counsel had his case postponed until next term of court and he was released on his own recognizance. As soon as this business was ended the accused stepped up to the Hon. Judge sitting on the bench, and extending his hand said, "Shake, Stonewall." I fit for four years under you during the war and I want to shake your hand." The Judge replied that he was mistaken, that he was not Stonewall Jackson and that he has always been against the rebels. The incident created no little amusement among those present, but the mountaineer did not seem to be in the least abashed.—Martinsburg Statesman.

A Deserved Appointment.

Mr. John H. Hill, principal of the colored public school in Shepherdstown, has been appointed assistant principal of the West Virginia State Colored School located near Charleston. The appointment is an excellent one, as Mr. Hill is highly qualified in every respect to fill the position. It was also added that the Democratic party gives the colored man something more than promises. Our representative in the Legislature, Hon. A. S. Dandridge, worked hard to secure the appointment for Mr. Hill. He will probably enter upon his duties within a month.

MATTERS MATRIMONIAL.

Weddings Past and Prospective—A Senator's Finances.

The residence of Mr. George W. Show, the popular confectioner, Hagerstown, was the scene of a very pretty wedding Tuesday morning. The occasion was the marriage of Mr. Show's daughter, Miss Carrie, a well-known and popular young lady of this city, to Mr. Samuel L. King, Jr., of Portsmouth, Va. The ceremony took place in the spacious parlors of Mr. Show's residence, in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, at 9:30 o'clock. Rev. George C. Bacon, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, of which the bride was a prominent member, officiated. The service, though simple, was deeply impressive. Miss Edith Hamilton played Mendelssohn's wedding march on the piano in skillful style. The bride was attired in a beautiful gown of three-toned brown velvet. She carried carnation flowers. The attendants were little Misses Minnie Show, sister of the bride, and Grace Hall, dressed in white. The groom looked handsome in a suit of conventional black. Immediately after the ceremony an elaborate wedding repast was served. The table presented a magnificent sight. In the center reared a tall pyramid of oranges artistically sliced. Smaller pyramids of pretty designs were made of small cakes. Fruits and ices were served. The table was beautifully decorated with flowers. The presents received were numerous, handsome, useful and costly and embraced many articles for household use and decoration. There were present persons from Shepherdstown and Martinsburg. Mr. and Mrs. King left on the 11:10 Baltimore and Ohio train for Washington, where they took a boat for their future home, Portsmouth, and where Mr. King is agent for the United States Express Company.—Hagerstown Globe.

One of the most fashionable and beautiful weddings that ever occurred in Wellsburg, this State, took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Paxton on Wednesday last week, when their daughter, Miss Amelia, was united in marriage to Mr. Samuel Hensell, of Knoxville, Tenn., a former resident of Shepherdstown. The ceremony was performed at 3 p. m. by Rev. Dr. Cochran, of the Presbyterian church, the impressive marriage ceremony of the Episcopal church being employed. The maid of honor was little Miss Paxton, of Wheeling, and Miss Brady, of Washington. They looked beautiful and carried ribbons with which they made an aisle through the guests, and were followed by Mr. Jesse Paxton, of Washington, and Mr. Doll, of Florida. Then came the bride and groom. The bride, who has always been noted for her beauty, looked still more lovely in a gown of pale pink silk, and carried La France roses. The groom wore the conventional suit of black. The ceremony was performed in the presence of about seventy-five guests. The spacious rooms and halls were beautifully decorated with flowers. The presents received were numerous and costly. Mr. and Mrs. Hensell left on the 10:35 train for Knoxville, Tenn., where they will make their new home.

The announcement of the engagement of Senator Charles J. Faulkner, of this State, to Miss Whiting, of Virginia, was announced in last week's REGISTER. The engagement was entered into three weeks ago. At that time Miss Whiting was a visitor to intimate friends of her family in Alexandria. The prominence and wealth of her family have brought Miss Whiting into notice in her native State, and her beauty, amiability and accomplishments have been commented on not only in the Southern but also in the Northern States. She has been a visitor to the home of Senator Faulkner's brother in Martinsburg, and it is there he first met her. The precise date of the wedding has not yet been determined, but it has been decided that the event will take place during the last week in January at the home of the bride's father, Col. H. Clay Whiting, at Hampton.

In taking leave of the congregation, Mr. Tucker spoke encouragingly of his confidence in the continued prosperity of the church, and urged with especial earnestness the care of the various local missions established during his rectorship and carried on successfully hitherto. ## The Prize Poem.

The following poem, written by Mrs. H. C. Getzenbauer, of this place, is the one that took the prize offered at Morgan's Grove fair for the best original poem:

THE OLD SPRING.

Seated one day on the cool, mossy stone, Where waters were falling in sweet motion, On a summer's calm eve, ere setting of sun, Forthdrew me the long day was now nearly done, To the past that for years had been dead, Till fancy, with magical fingers outspread, Pointed back to the past that for years had been dead, And with a soft cadence the ripples sang low, All that fancy seemed telling of long-long ago.

For history has marked out this spot for her own, Old "Falling Spring" is to both book and song known.

And by these same waters, in ancient day, The poet and the wigmaker were picked in array.

All those rocks and green hills and valleys, All that wild Indian yells and with war-whoops, But the wigwags and Indians have long passed away.

Many trophies of them are found here to this day, Of arrows and spears upturned by the plowshare, To witness their camping-ground once had.

Years past, and once more a small band and brave, (Not the time this time, but the white men who gave them for their country, met here and began.

A "Bee-line for Boston," to assist Washington, And they fought long and bravely, those valiant ones.

There were not many left to return here, But fallen in honor their sacred dust lies, While their souls reap glory in bright paradise.

The waves ripple on and the theme of the day is now of young lovers, so happy and gay, Who had pledged their troth by this cool, flowing stream.

Let me wander back to the time in fancy's sweet dream, But back to the present again I must move, For the waters are bringing the sounds from the "grove," Of love and laughter, gay throngs come and go.

For today is the closing of "Morgan's Grove" These waters have given a liberal amount of credit, but need not from Nature's own hand, To hundreds of thirsty, tired souls from the town.

Who paused at the cooling spring and refreshed themselves, And then, on old waters, forever and aye, To give drink to the many who happen this way.

And when life grows a burden, with its trials and care, Let me wander back to thee and find a rest there.
